

Sports Trauma and Overuse Prevention (STOP)

STOP Sports Injuries

Description of Collaboration by Medical Institutions

Since the American Orthopaedic Society for Sports Medicine (AOSSM) announced the launch of its Sports Trauma and Overuse Prevention campaign (STOP), also referred to as STOP Sports Injuries, the Society has been approached by other organizations about their involvement in this campaign. The campaign is structured so that a broad array of organizations can join this common cause while maintaining their unique identities as separate organizations. This document creates a common set of parameters and expectations for collaborating medical institutions to ensure consistency in their participation, recognition and governance within the STOP Sports Injuries program.

Participation

Collaboration by medical institutions is open to organizations that are:

1. Incorporated medical institutions, such as hospitals, clinics, institutes and health plans, involved with treatment, education and/or research of sports medicine injuries.
2. Committed to supporting the campaign in the following ways:
 - Provide the use of their name and logo on campaign materials;
 - Establish a link from their website to the STOP Sports Injuries Campaign website;
 - Participate in Campaign activities, as appropriate, including distribution of materials, sponsoring STOP Sports Injuries community activities and other outreach activities;
 - Appoint a staff member to serve as the official liaison to the campaign.
3. Approved by AOSSM.

Collaborating medical institutions have the following privileges to support their respective sports trauma and overuse prevention activities:

1. Use of the Sports Trauma and Overuse Prevention (STOP) or STOP Sports Injuries name and logo on signage or other promotional materials, subject to approval by AOSSM. (Note: The Campaign name and logo may not be used on educational materials unless developed under the auspices of the Campaign and approved by AOSSM.)
2. Utilize or disseminate STOP Sports Injuries educational resources, including printed materials, pdfs, on-line links, etc. Collaborating Medical Institutions are welcome to supplement their distribution of STOP Sports Injuries educational materials with their own educational literature which does not bear the STOP Sports Injury name or logo.

3. Purchase at cost or print STOP Sports Injuries educational materials. Collaborating medical Institutions may print or re-produce STOP Sports Injuries educational material provided it conforms to established Campaign standards.

Organizations desiring to participate in the STOP Sports Injuries Campaign are expected to submit a brief agreement acknowledging the parameters of the Campaign. Participating organizations can end their participation upon written notice to AOSSM.

Recognition

Collaborating medical institutions will be recognized within the STOP Sports Injuries Campaign in the following ways:

- Inclusion of the organization's name and logo on the STOP Sports Injuries website, along with a profile detailing the organization's interest and commitment to sports trauma and overuse prevention.
- Link from the STOP Sports Injuries website to the organization's website.
- Use of STOP Sports Injuries name and logo on organization's materials (letterhead, website, newsletters) The STOP Sports Injuries name and logo cannot be included on educational materials developed outside of the auspices of the Campaign.
- Designation of spokespersons for media requests/referrals by the STOP Sports Injuries campaign.
- Designation of official contacts for public inquiries about sports trauma and overuse injuries.

Governance

Sports Trauma and Overuse Prevention (and STOP Sports Injuries) is a mark registered with the US Patent and Trademark Office by AOSSM. As such, the AOSSM Board of Directors assumes ultimate responsibility for the direction and activities of the Campaign. Day-to-day oversight of the Campaign is coordinated by AOSSM staff, with assistance by contracted vendors and other staff designated by participating organizations. AOSSM's address and telephone will be the exclusive official address for the Campaign. AOSSM may revise or eliminate elements of the STOP Sports Injury Campaign from time to time.

Conclusion

The STOP Sports Injuries Campaign resonates with a broad array of sports related organizations. Participation by these organizations elevates the credibility of the Campaign and enhances its ability to effectively reach a broad spectrum of our target audiences - parents, coaches, athletes and health care providers. This proposed agreement is designed to facilitate participation by collaborating organizations in a consistent and appropriate fashion so we can effectively STOP Sports Injuries.
